The Servians consequently, on their side, refused to restore the low rates of duty on Austrian merchandise in force before the tariff war, and the new duties, though lower than those of the general Servian tariff, still formed a serious impediment to Austrian industrial exports.

Much the same difficulty has been met with in coming to a satisfactory arrangement with Rumania, also a preeminently agricultural country. The terms of a commercial treaty were at length fixed in April, 1909, which, though much more favorable to the agrarian than the industrial interests in the monarchy, would have been welcomed by the latter as better than no treaty at all.

The Austrian government also introduced a bill during the summer of 1909 empowering it at least to bring com mercial arrangements with Servia. Bulgaria, Greece, and Montenegro provision-meet either Harvard, Yale or Princeton. It was very evident from the showyear's varsity has great possibilities; later work. The lineups: although the fighting spirit and aggressiveness that always come out in a Penn. sylvania team some time during the season has not yet shown up.

The sureness of catching and good kicking which are always winning factors in a great contest, lie in individual brilliancy, also in running, such as was shown by Hutchinson on Saturday. Those especially lie in the clever interference of the whole team, and in the ability to tackle, and the principles of defense.

When the Brown team rushed Pennsylvania back over her goal line for a touchdown there was little aggressive ness shown by the players. This lack of aggressiveness was shown quite clearly by the way loose balls were allowed to be recovered by Brown men.
Over a dozen times the ball was lost in PRINCETON STOPS that game with an even chance to get it for both Pennsylvania men and Brown men, and the latter won out every time.

The Brown linemen showed many weaknesses in the Pennsylvania line as they opened up big holes between tackles. The Brown line also stopped most of Pennsylvania plays without the aid of the secondary defense. This will have to be remedied before the Indians are met. Lamberton on Saturday was particularly off in his game.

There seems to be plenty of good varsity material for every position on the eleven, but it is still far from well ball once and Hart himself making a 10posted on the fine points of the play, yard dash for another. Woodle was playboth as individuals and as a team.

PREPARING FOR

AMHERST - In preparation for the game with Dartmouth, Amherst went into secret practise Tuesday. A large squad of undergraduate football men reported to give the varsity some hard practise. Several of last season's regulars who are ineligible appeared for the first time and were put into a stiff scrimmage with the varsity.

A variety of trick plays are to be tried soon, for the elementary tactics have been learne !. While even the most optimistic do not look for a victory over Dartmouth, yet Amherst expects to score on the New Hampshire college. Willitts '13 and Buck '11 were put on the scrubs. while Miles '12 was played at halfback on the varsity. Extensive preparations are being made for the game, a new grand stand having been erected.

The student-judging contests of fruit are special features of today's program of the New England fruit show in prog: ress this week at the Massachusetts Horticultural hall.

The students, about 20 in number, participating in these contests represent the University of Maine, the Massachusetts Agricultural College and the New Hampshire College. These contests, held under the direction of Prof. V. R. Gardner of the University of Maine, are carried on under the auspices of the New England Federation of Agricultural Students, which offers a cup to the winning team and a prize to the individual stu-dent making the highest score.

This morning the contest consisted of judging plate fruit, and this afternoon the judging of barrel and box fruit will take place. Announcement of the winners will be made early this evening.

An interesting addition was made to the exhibit this morning, consisting of specimens of the original species of wild apples from which the present cultivated orchard apples of New England are supposed to have descended. These specimens are from the Arnold arboretum.

A few blue ribbon first prizes on plate fruits were announced today, the winners being F. N. Dalh of Poxbury for Angouleme pears, W. J. Wheeler of Worcester for Clairgean pears, John L. Bird of Boston for Cornice pears, W. J. Wheeler of Worcester for Lawrence pears, Elbridge Torrey of Dorcnester for Sheldon pears, W. C. Fuller of Leominster for Anjou pears, H. A. of the service in that territory, and re garded as of paramount importance the adoption by Congress, of an effective school attendance law.

Moral education, through cleanliness, and remunerative industry, were among other problems which Dr. Brown said the United States through its Alaska service was working out gradually for the betterment of the natives.

The action of Congress in adding $100, 000 to the annual appropriation for the education of the natives of Alaska, in 1908, the speaker declared, had made it possible to extend the work to villages which had not been previously reached. Twenty-nine new school buildings were erected during that year, he said, and this extension of the service has been accompanied by a broadening of the activities which it embraced.

"The problems considered," he said, "are not simply scholastic in the older and narrower sense; they are the problems of community and racial life, or indeed the problems of racial destiny. Recognizing the fact that this backward people is already in contact with civilization, and is beginning to suffer from that from the contact of civilization with a people of belated development, the directors of the enterprise have been obliged to consider the possible and the desirable future of their charges and prepare them as best they can for the "Legal restraints, particularly with regard to the sale of intoxicants, was another factor to be reckoned with," the speaker believed. He applauded the action of the department of justice in proceeding vigorously against the traffic in strong drink from which, he said, the natives had suffered.

Robert G. Valentine, commissioner of Indian affairs, made a spirited defense of the commission, in which he declared in favor of higher salaries. The salary of the superintendent of the Osage reservation, he said, was $2000, a piece of criminal negligence on the part of the government, because the property handled is worth millions.

"It is possible to do two things with the Indians," Mr., Valentine said. "Exterminate them or make them into citizens. Whichever we choose the work should be done in the most businesslike manner. Our present course is a cross between extermination and citizenship. If we would escape a disgrace greater than any which has attended this Indian business we must set ourselves resolutely to clean and high courses.

WASHINGTON STREET TUNNEL

The Washington Street Tunnel, between Haymarket Square on the north and Eliot and Kneeland Streets on the south, has eight stations. These stations with their thirty entrances and exits amount to almost a continuous station under Washington Street. From them it is only a few steps to retail stores, business offices, hotels, theatres, public buildings, institutions, courts, historic buildings and points, banks, banking houses, clubs, newspaper offices, the Post Office, the Stock Exchange, the Relief Hospital, the markets, churches and other places of resort. Indeed, there are nowhere else in the world so many points of equal interest so accessible to any rapid transit thoroughfare.

Yet many do not appreciate the availability of these stations. Many do not know where to find the entrances most convenient for their own use, and others are unaware of the superiority of this line over some of the surface lines.

In order that our patrons may have a better knowledge of the facilities supplied by this Tunnel, we are publishing information concerning each of the Report Shows Afforestation Is Progressing Steadily and Many Young Trees Are Distributed.

Italy is now among the leading naforest resources. Extensive operations in afforestation have been going on for 40 years, and the Italian secretary of agriculture has just published his report on the progress made in that time.

This report indicates that the Italian Government is keenly aware of the value of forests to the country, and that it is letermined to bring its deforested lands into a forested state as soon again as possible. To attain this end, planting operations have been conducted on gov ernment lands to such an extent that in 30 years 122,000 acres have been planted in 25 provinces. Of this area, 69,000 acres, or approximately 108 square miles, were planted in 1907, causing an outlay of nearly $2,000,000 and giving employnent to a large number of men.

Afforestation has been carried on so igorously that there now remains only about 36,000 acres of government land in need of planting. In addition to conducting planting operations on a large scale, the Italian government has in 40 years distributed over 130,000,000 young trees and 237,600 pounds of seed, an amount sufficient to restock approximately 100,000 acres of land, to the people in an effort to encourage planting and sowing by private persons. As the Roud, the ladies' tailor at 420 Boylston forest area of Italy amounts to only slightly more than 10,000,000 acres, this assortment of broadcloths, cheviots and planting by the government and private

SAFETY EXPLOSIVE MADE BY BRITISHER TESTED AT PANAMA

WASHINGTON-A new explosive, the invention of a Britisher, which possesses possibilities, it is said, of revolutionizing the blasting work in connection with the construction of the Panama canal was tested on the isthmus of Panama recently, and as a result the Panama canal commission ordered 20 tons of it for trial.

A report on the new invention has just been made by Vice-Consul General Claude F. Guyan of Panama. The inventors made positive tests before the members of the isthmian canal commission and officials of the republic of Panama, according to the consular officer, and they showed that it is absolutely impossible to explode it by ordinary means. It was hammered with a sledge, shot into with a rifle, burned and ordinary dynamite detonators were exploded in it, but the compound was inert. Not until a special detenstor was inserted could the substance be exploded; but then, in a few charges that were set fuse. It will not explode by concussion.

The new explosive is composed of perchlorate of ammonia, nitrate of soda and several other ingredients such as paraffine for water proofing, etc. It is claimed that it is 50 per cent stronger than the 66 per cent grade of dynamite, and that the cost of manufacturing will be more than $2 per ton cheaper.

So confident is the inventor that he will secure the contract to furnish all the explosives to be used on the canal next year, Mr. Guyan states, that he has organized a company which will at once erect a factory on the isthmus with a capacity of between 6000 and 7000 tons per annum.

MUSIC TRUSTEES OF BOSTON PREPARE WINTER PROGRAMS

Orchestral Concerts in Halls and High School Buildings Were Started by City and Have Been Copied Elsewhere-Lecturer Explains the Selections.

A SERIES OF SIX ARTICLES-NO. VI. The Boston board of music trustees and Secretary William J. Leahy are making preparations for the usual winter orchestral programs to be given in various halls and high school buildings in Greater Boston beginning early in Boston was the first city in America to try this plan of free winter concerts ! for the uplift of the public along musical lines. Today other cities of the United States- are adopting the idea. Syracuse, N. Y., has successfully tried it, and St. Louis and other cities have made inquiries concerning Boston's methods.

Secretary Leahy says plans for this fall are yet in their infancy, but does not hesitate to assure the public that a number of improvements are contemplated.

Boston's free winter orchestral concerts were originated by the music department in 1898, and for two seasons the city gave evening concerts in the school halls with music by a string quartet. a singer and a pianist.

The innovation proved popular and helpful. In 1961 an orchestra of nine members (and later 16 members) was organized. Concerts have been carried on with increasing success to the present time. Two years ago Prof. Louis C. El-son of the New England Conservatory of . Music was engaged as a lecturer to explain in a simple way the selections on the program. #### Farm Lien Security Irrigation bonds are secured by first Hens on the most fertile farm lands in America. The lieus are given by lad vidual land owners in payment for water rights. And the water immediwater rights. And the water immediately multiplies the land's value.

The liens are conservative. Usually they will not exceed one-fourth the land's value. The liens are paid off in ten annual instalments.

The first crop from the land is frequently sufficient to pay the whole lien often by several times over. These liens, therefore, have many advantages over the usual farm mortgage.

In addition, the bonds are secured by

Those Blanket Ballot Sheets

For years the aim of true reformers working upon the problem of securing an intelligent expression of the popular choice at the polls and an honest count of the vote has been to simplify to the last degree the machinery of election. To this end was uniformity in size and color and general appearance of the ballot sheets first insisted upon and finally legally required. To this end was the circle of the Australian ballot adopted as a substitute for the erasure and paster system of other days. To this end the single ballot sheet has now been adopted almost universally in this

Of recent years, however, the tendency toward blanket sheet ballots has been very strong, and it reaches its high level at the present time in Greater New York, where the voter will be confronted with a broadside containing no less than twenty-one columns.

This sheet will be four and one-half feet wide and the voter, whether intelligent or otherwise, is to be helped in the matter of making his choice by the employment of emblems at the top of each column. The purpose of these emblems, presumably, is to enable him to determine, even when he does not read English, whether the column he is about to mark is the right one, according to previous instructions from the managers or agents of his party. Thus there are a gas meter, a house with a fence in front of it, the statue of Liberty, the Liberty bell, a keystone, Justice holding a pair of scales, the end of an electric car in a tunnel, a torch, the conventional head of Liberty, a five-pointed star, an arm with a hammer, a hollow square, a country residence, a flying eagle, and a balloon.

Of course, if this arrangement of devices, most of which seem almost to have been abstracted from the ad "cut" box of a rural newspaper of a generation ago, will serve to enlighten the voter with regard to the best means of employing his right to the exercise of the franchise, there should be no complaint.

None is made here. It would seem, however, that the work of simplifying the election machinery of the country will have to be resumed. A multiplication of parties and a great increase in the number of independent candidates are among the principal causes of the increase in the size of the ballots. Greater restriction with regard to the use of the ballot by minor parties and candidates by petition offers the only remedy in sight at present, and this is a remedy, manifestly, that must be applied with great delicacy, for the right of people to seek office is fully as sacred as the right of other people to vote for them.

THE deeper the investigation into present conditions in Kansas the less probable does it appear that if William Allen White, "the sage of Emporia," had not written his famous editorial a long time ago, and had postponed the writing of it until now, it never would have been written at all. For on any reasonable ground, so far as anybody at a distance can see, there is nothing the matter with Kansas, except it be that things are coming almost too easily for it. Everybody is now familiar with the prosperous condition of the farmers of that state, with the information that they live in handsome homes, enjoy all the modern improvements from telephones to phonographs, from rural free delivery to automobiles, have paid off their mortgages long ago, have money out at interest and are talking seriously of making loans to Wall street. All this is as a story that has been told. But one thing has been

Few states, if any, in the Union are better governed than Kansas. It is a progressive commonwealth. It keeps pace with its neighbors in the matter of public improvements. Yet, while Missouri property owners pay in taxes seventeen cents on the hundred dollars, and Iowans forty cents, the total levy for all state taxes in Kansas is only twelve and one-half cents on the hundred dollars.

Missouri and Iowa are mentioned in comparison only because they are neighboring states. Both are well governed, and both are probably making satisfactory returns to the taxpayers. But the point is that Kansas, which was once pointed out, and by a favorite son. too, as a state that had something the matter with it, seems to be particularly free at this writing from any manner of defect.

Livadia---Racconigi

CZAR NICHOLAS' visit to the King of Italy has been a theme of international romance for some little time. Only the other day it was reported as indefinitely postponed owing to the anarchist ferment prevalent in western Europe. Before that, the passage through the Dardanelles was mooted and abandoned and the possible meeting between Czar and Sultan was declared impossible for the moment. Today's announcement is that the Czar will travel all of 2000 miles in order to escape setting foot on Austrian soil; the memories of the Serb crisis will not allow it. And so the imperial train de luxe will cover the distance between Livadia and Racconigi, between the Crimea and Piedmont, by describing the wide semi-circle indicated by the cities of Odessa, Posen, Frankfort and Besancon. How this huge detour must remind Alexander Izvolsky of the Danube-Adria railroad project, which, shelved though it is for the present, may some day give Russia free access to the western Balkan, the Adriatic and her Latin friends!

Whether the announcement of this roundabout route prove erroneous or correct, it is evident that everything published in regard to the Czar's journey to Italy is systematically colored to throw certain interested parties off the scent. The present juncture contains unusually strong arguments in favor of every precaution for the safety of the imperial traveler, and the mere fact of his venturing into Italy in the midst of the Ferrer demonstrations, kept up largely. it is said, in anticipation of his visit, adds significance to the event.

At a time when all eyes are once more fastened on the far east, this meeting between the Czar and King Victor Emmanuel, a longdeferred courtesy though it is, possesses a peculiar interest for Americans. There is a distinct impression that Russia is again slowly shifting her center of gravity eastward toward the Pacific, a course that is rendered difficult through the estrangement between Russia and Austria. It would seem that the time was propitious for a clear definition of the common ground between Russia's and Italy's interests. Such a definition must help to introduce a clarifying note into far eastern affairs that will be especially welcome to Americans.

The Apple Industry

So MUCH is said of corn and wheat and cotton and some other products from time to time that the average newspaper reader is on easy terms with statistics relating to them. Unless he has taken special pains to acquaint . himself with the facts, however, he is likely to be surprised when told that the apple crop of the United States and Canada this year will be approximately 35,000,000 barrels.

This will be greater by about 12,000,000 barrels than the crop of last year. Nevertheless, apple production in the United States and Canada has fallen off in the last fifteen years. In 1895 the crop ran up to 60,000,000 barrels; in 1908 it ran down to 23,000,000 barrels; it is now up to 35,000,000, but this is 25,000,-000 barrels short of what it was in 1895, far short of what it ought to be, and far short of what it will be if fruit culture receives the attention that is promised it in the next few years.

In Boston vesterday the New England show, a newly organized association for the promotion of fruit culture in this section, celebrated National Apple day by opening its exhibition in Horticultural hall. The apple growers of six states are here exhibiting some splendid examples of what may be accomplished by intelligent fruit culture in a country where there has lately been a false popular belief to the effect that the land had ceased to respond to the touch of industry. The only New England state that showed any loss in apple production this year is New Hampshire, which in this respect keeps company with New York, Kansas and Oklahoma. According to a statement issued by the International Apple Shippers Association the crop of the New England states is 20 per cent in excess of 1908; in the central states the yield is about 71/2 per cent below last year; the crop of the middle western states is double that of last season, but last season's crop was very light. The Pacific states have a smaller crop this year than last; the southern states a crop from 125 to 150 per cent larger, and the Dominion of Canada, not including Nova Scotia, a crop of about 75 per cent greater than

There is a world-wide demand for American apples. In 1902 2,800,000 bushels of apples were exported; in 1907 7,800,000 bushels. Nothing prevents a tremendous expansion of our apple exports save the increase of the demand at home, which keeps the prices at a point prohibitory almost to exporters.

The matter has assumed such important proportions in this state that the Boston Chamber of Commerce will devote the first of its regular meetings this fall to consideration of the possibilities of apple culture in Massachusetts. The subject is a live one in many other states. Beginning on the fifteenth and continuing until the twentieth of next month probably the greatest apple show ever held will open in Spokane, Wash., its principal purpose being to stimulate interest in apple growing throughout the Pacific Northwest. The value of the fruit crop of Washington, Oregon and Idaho in 1908 was $14,-000,000. The state of Washington alone has over 200,000 acres in orchards, most of them young and not yet bearing.

The climatic as well as the soil conditions of the New England states are believed to be peculiarly favorable to fruit farming, and this being the case it is to be hoped that the agencies that are now employed in the work of promoting the industry in this section may receive encouragement from all classes of citizens.

The tendency of aeronauts to "circle" around things must have been remarked by an observant people. Mr. Wright has "circled" around the Liberty statue in New York harbor, recently, and Count de Lambert on Monday "circled" around the Eiffel tower in Paris. The Washington monument will have to be "circled" around in due time, of course, and then, maybe, Bunker Hill monument's time will

THE friends of the project to provide the additional sum of $500,000 necessary to the erection and furnishing of the new Young Men's Christian Association building at Newbury and Arlington streets, this city, have very properly named it "a civic movement to meet a great civic need." The present quarters of the association on Boylston street have become inadequate, and are known to be so by everybody who is in the least degree familiar with the work which is being carried on within its walls. Better and larger accommodations and facilities are demanded in the interest of an institution that is doing much toward the making of useful citizens.

The Boston Young Men's Christian Association not only strives to meet the needs of the city proper but to be, as it is, a civic center, an industrial center, an educational center, a recreation center-a boys' and men's club-for 128 Massachusetts towns. It performs a much-needed function, for of late years its breadth of policy, its undenominationalism, its cheerful hospitality, have invited boys, young men, middle-aged men and even old men to seek within its walls an education that is too often denied them elsewhere. As a consequence, its popularity has greatly increased, and hand in hand with the growth of its popularity has been the growth of its influence

The $500,000 needed to insure the carrying out of the plans of the association should be subscribed in Boston, by Bostonians, even before the date set for the completion of the fund, Nov. 1. The responses so far have been generous. They should increase in number and generosity. Regarded even from the standpoint of commercialism, there is scarcely any enterprise in which Bostonians can invest their money that will assure greater returns to the city.

The Defense the Panama Canal

mitted to Congress for its action.

WHEN the project of constructing a ship canal across the isthmus of Panama was in its inception, and at intervals during its discussion, the question of defending the completed canal from hostile action on the part of any foreign nation received very serious attention. In fact, it was apparent that the canal would be useless to us in a time of emergency unless we were in a position not only to protect it from attack but to dictate absolutely what use should be made of it in time of war, whether we were directly concerned in the conflict or not. It was recognized as being of the greatest importance that we should be so strong at Panama as to be able to enforce neutrality, even though the most powerful of foreign navies should be knocking for admission to our waterway and threatening to enforce the demand.

Not much has been said recently with relation to this matter, mainly because the time for action had not arrived. Washington advices intimate now, however, that the work of constructing fortifications to command the Atlantic and Pacific entrances is to be carefully considered by a joint army and navy board next winter. A visit will first be made to the isthmus, the ground will be examined, and a complete report of the conditions existing there will be sub-

Unless the plans of Colonel Goethals, chief engineer of the work, shall in some manner be seriously interfered with, the canal will be ready for opening on Jan. 1, 1915; that is, a little more than four years hence. If the necessary fortifications are begun within the next year they can be constructed and equipped in time for the opening of the canal, but ordinary prudence should dictate that there be no further delay in the matter. Even in a partially unfinished condition the canal will mean to us an investment of nearly $300,000,000, and the work should not remain unprotected an hour longer than may be necessary.

There is quite certain to be controversy as to whether the defense of the canal should rest with the army or with the navy, and over the character of the defense works. Unless this shall be cut short by positive action on the part of the leaders in Congress, supported by the influence of the President and cabinet, there is danger that we may have on our hands in 1915 an interoceanic waterway that will lack proper defenses.

THE telephone has not gone into such general use abroad as it has in the United States and this fact, strange as it may appear, is being made the basis of a discussion that runs the gamut of economic controversy. The London Times, for example, draws from the figures the conclusion that the reason for the greater use of the telephone in the United States and the smaller use of it in Europe is that over there it is mainly under government control, while over here it is under private management. The figures themselves are interesting. Europe, with a population of 400,000,000, is served by only 2,300,000 instruments, while the United States, with an estimated population of 85,000,000, uses 7,000,000 telephones. The number of telephones used in three of our cities-New York, 334,186; Chicago, 184,922; and Boston, in excess of 100,000—is greater than the number used in all England. France has fewer by far than England, the total number of instruments employed in France being 194,159, while Austria has only 80,975. According to the London Times, Italy, Belgium and Hungary each has fewer telephones than St. Louis, Pattsburg or San Telephone service is cheaper in Europe than it is elsewhere, and the convenience it affords is appreciated fully as much by Europeans as by Americans; but neither the business methods nor the social customs of Europe call, as do ours; for the constant use of the telephone. It is quite probable that government ownership and government management have nothing whatever to do with the matter, unless it might be, which is probably the case, that this control causes a greater use of the telephone abroad than what there would be if the service were under private management. Government ownership and management does not prevent a very free use of the mails and telegraph in the countries named above.

In the older countries there is not the hurry, the rush, the immediateness that is so familiar to us on this side of the Atlantic. Things can wait a little longer over there. Everything does not have to be disposed of at once. There is always a tomorrow.

Here it is chiefly today. And who shall prove that our way is
